III. Restrictions on Entering Mainland China

- The CPG temporarily suspends the entry into Mainland China by foreign nationals holding visas or residence permits still valid to the time of the announcement on March 26, 2020. Entry by foreign nationals with APEC Business Travel Cards are suspended as well. Foreign nationals for necessary economic, trade, scientific or technological activities or out of emergency humanitarian needs may apply for visas at Chinese embassies or consulates. Entry by foreign nationals with visas issued after March 26 will not be affected.
- On March 26, 2020, the Civil Aviation Administration of China announces that each Chinese airline is only allowed to maintain one route to any specific country with no more than one flight per week; selected foreign airlines are allowed to maintain one route to China with no more than one weekly flight.
- Guangdong and Shenzhen authorities announce that all inbound travellers (including travellers from Hong Kong, Macao, and Taiwan, and transit passengers), regardless of their destinations, will be required to take COVID-19 nucleic acid tests and to undergo a 14-day quarantine.
- Starting from April 10, 2020, the Shenzhen Municipal Government requires all cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers who enter Shenzhen via Shenzhen ports to present the "i Shenzhen" health certification code and proof of a negative result of a nucleic acid test conducted within the previous 7 days to Shenzhen customs officers for examination before entering Shenzhen. Concurrently, the Zhuhai Municipal Government requires all cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers who enter Zhuhai via Hong Kong-Zhuhai-Macao Bridge to present proof of a negative result of a nucleic acid test conducted within the previous 7 days. Drivers must acquire a negative result of a nucleic acid test before entering the Mainland ports. Tests for the Hong Kong cross-boundary goods vehicle driver are centralised at the site of ports and the cost is HK$350. The HKSAR Government bears the cost involved.
- Starting from April 28, 2020, travellers entering Shenzhen via Shenzhen ports are required to stay at a designated quarantine centre for 14 days for medical observation.
- Starting from June 8, 2020, all foreign airlines are allowed to choose from a list of approved cities to operate one international passenger flight a week.
- Starting from July 17, 2020, save for persons who received prior approval for performing essential official and business duties, cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers, cross-boundary students, as well as persons who fall under the mutual recognition of compulsory quarantine by Guangdong, Hong Kong and Macao, all other persons are required to present a valid proof of a valid negative COVID-19 nucleic acid test result issued by one of the testing institutions recognised by the HKSAR Government. The negative test result would only be considered valid if it is within 72 hours from the date of collecting samples. They must bring along the valid proof, or otherwise they will be refused entry into Guangdong. When they re-enter Hong Kong after being refused of entry in the Mainland, they will be subjected to compulsory quarantine of 14 days pursuant to the Compulsory Quarantine of Certain Persons Arriving at Hong Kong Regulation (Cap. 599C).

- On July 21, 2020, the Civil Aviation Administration of China, the General Administration of Customs and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs announce that all airport arrivals from overseas will be required to undergo nucleic acid tests up to five days prior to departure at health institutions designated or recognised by Chinese embassies overseas. Chinese embassies will evaluate the nucleic acid testing capacities of the countries they are located in. Specific measures will be announced later.
- Starting from July 23, 2020, Shenzhen and Zhuhai Municipal Governments require cross-boundary truck drivers who are exempted from collective medical observation to present a negative result of nucleic acid test issued within 72 hours by a qualified testing institution recognised by the Guangdong and Hong Kong governments when entering the Mainland ports. Drivers should return to Hong Kong on the arrival day except in case of necessity.
- Guangdong Province has strengthened the entry management measures for cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers entering Guangdong. If a cross-boundary goods vehicle driver resides in a building reported as having a confirmed COVID-19 case in the past 14 days, his exemption from quarantine requirement on entering the Mainland will be temporarily suspended until 14 days after the announcement of the last confirmed case in that building. The driver concerned must wait until his eligibility for quarantine exemption is restored (i.e. on the 15th day or later) to go for nucleic acid testing at the Mainland port. He will only be allowed to enter the Mainland again after availability of proof of the negative nucleic acid test result uploaded to the relevant anti-epidemic health information code programme and completing other necessary quarantine procedures on-site. If a cross-boundary goods vehicle company has a driver who has contracted COVID-19, other cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers of that company should not drive cross-boundary goods vehicles into the Mainland within 14 days from the date of confirmed infection of the driver concerned. All other cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers who have had contact with the infected driver during the period from the date of the infected driver's last nucleic acid test with a negative result to the date of confirmed infection should not drive cross-boundary goods vehicles entering Guangdong for 14 days counted from the date of confirmed infection. Before resuming the driving activity, the affected cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers are required to take a nucleic acid test again and obtain a negative result.
- Starting from August 6, inbound travellers who have been to Xinjiang or Liaoning in the past 14 days (applies to all inbound travellers including exempted persons) arriving via land boundary control points (Shenzhen Bay Port and the Hong Kong-Zhuhai-Macao Bridge Hong Kong Port) will be provided with specimen collection containers and required to collect their deep throat saliva sample by themselves in accordance with the instructions and return the sample for conducting COVID-19 testing. Separately, the current testing arrangements required for relevant inbound travellers who have been to Hubei or Beijing in the past 14 days will be cancelled but those arrivals who are not exempted persons are still subject to compulsory quarantine for 14 day at a designated place (home or other accommodation) while exempted persons are subject to medical surveillance upon arrival at Hong Kong.

- Guangdong Provincial Government has adjusted the requirement for people entering the province. Starting from 10am on August 7, save for persons who received prior approval by Guangdong for performing essential official and business duties and cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers who would continue be subjected to the prevailing policies applicable to them, all other persons who are entering Guangdong via the Shenzhen Bay and Hong Kong-Zhuhai-Macao Bridge control points would be required to present a valid proof of a negative COVID-19 nucleic acid test result issued by one of the testing institutions recognised by the HKSAR Government. The negative test result would be valid within 24 hours from issue time of the report.
- Starting from 6am on August 8, the health management and service assurance measures for cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers will be strengthened at various land boundary control points in Shenzhen. Before entering Shenzhen, cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers should declare accurately the relevant detailed information on their transport operations through the WeChat mobile app "粵省事". Goods vehicles after crossing the boundary must proceed to designated venues according to directions made by relevant departments for free installation of Global Positioning System and electronic toll collection devices.

Cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers must present proof of a negative result of a nucleic acid test conducted within 72 hours and cross the boundary after declaring information on their transport operations. Drivers must follow the declared driving routes from the control points to the destinations for carrying out point-to-point transportation. These drivers must return to Hong Kong immediately after loading/unloading operations. While staying in Shenzhen, drivers must wear a face mask at all times. They must not alight from their vehicles or have direct contacts with the locals or stay overnight in Shenzhen unless exceptional circumstances.

Cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers should only operate within the nine cities in the Guangdong-Hong Kong-Macao Greater Bay Area, and should return to Hong Kong on the same day or on completion of their driving duties except under special need and must not visit other cities in the Mainland. If the destination is within Shenzhen, drivers should immediately return to Hong Kong after completing their operation. When the destinations are Guangzhou, Zhuhai, Foshan, Huizhou, Dongguan, Zhongshan, Jiangmen and Zhaoqing in the Greater Bay Area, drivers must not deviate from their declared routes when passing through Shenzhen. When the destinations are other cities of Guangdong Province or cities outside Guangdong Province, drivers must return to Hong Kong after loading goods or detaching trailer in the nine cities in the Greater Bay Area.

Cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers should follow the guidelines on site to use the service facilities at the following venues: service areas on expressways, tolling points, petrol stations, logistics park areas, check points, maintenance depots, car parks and other goods transshipment points along the operation routes.

Driver shift changing in the vicinity of Wenjindu Port shall be conducted at designated places. The cross-boundary drivers shall be staying at designated rest place or hostel to wait for loaded vehicles on return to Hong Kong. For cross-boundary goods vehicles and drivers adopting other operation modes such as onboard escort by cross-boundary drivers, prior approval should be sought from the relevant Mainland authorities.

For cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers who have a place of permanent residence in Shenzhen, the Shenzhen government will provide designated accommodation for them, subsidise part of their food and accommodation expenses, provide them with fee-paying parking spaces and transport shuttle services for implementing closed management. For cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers with their place of permanent residence in Hong Kong who cannot return to Hong Kong in time under special circumstances, they may stay at their own costs in hostels specified by the Shenzhen government after verification and are not allowed to stay in self-arranged accommodation in Shenzhen. Shenzhen government supports the cross-boundary transportation companies and cargo consignors to provide dormitory which can meet closed management standard for cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers. Cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers may apply to withdraw from the exemption list of compulsory quarantine for cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers. Upon approval, they will not be subject to accommodation restriction measures on cross-boundary goods vehicle drivers. They are required to undergo local isolation at a designated place for medical surveillance if they have crossed the boundary within 14 days.

A cross-boundary driver will not be eligible for exemption from the quarantine requirement on entering the Mainland temporarily or will be removed from the exemption list by the Shenzhen Municipal Government if the following situations occur in the course of performance of the transportation duties: (i) travelling between Hong Kong and Shenzhen repeatedly without goods on board and with no sound and appropriate reasons during the prevention and control of COVID-19; (ii) not travelling on the declared route with no sound and appropriate reasons; (iii) having direct interaction with other people, entering public places or staying in self-arranged accommodation overnight with no sound and appropriate reasons; (iv) refusing to leave the Mainland after completing their driving duties with no sound and appropriate reasons; (v) declaring false information on their driving duties or submitting fake nucleic acid test result(s); (vi) receiving administrative penalties by the customs and immigration inspection of the Mainland for seriously contravening health quarantine, arrival and departure clearance or anti-smuggling regulations when crossing the boundary control points; (vii) receiving administrative penalties by the Mainland security, transport or market regulation departments for seriously contravening relevant management requirements when performing duties in the Mainland; (viii) residing in a Hong Kong building reported as having a confirmed COVID-19 case in the past 14 days or having had contact with an infected person within 14 days prior to entering the Mainland; and (ix) behaving not in accordance with other requirements and measures for prevention and control of COVID-19 imposed by Guangdong Province and Shenzhen City.

VI. WHO recommendations for international traffic in relation to COVID-19 outbreak

[Feb 29] WHO continues to advise against the application of travel or trade restrictions to countries experiencing COVID-19 outbreaks. In general, evidence shows that restricting the movement of people and goods during public health emergencies is ineffective in most situations and may divert resources from other interventions. Furthermore, restrictions may interrupt needed aid and technical support, may disrupt businesses, and may have negative social and economic effects on the affected countries. However, in certain circumstances, measures that restrict the movement of people may prove temporarily useful, such as in settings with few international connections and limited response capacities.

Travel measures that significantly interfere with international traffic may only be justified at the beginning of an outbreak, as they may allow countries to gain time, even if only a few days, to rapidly implement effective preparedness measures. Such restrictions must be based on a careful risk assessment, be proportionate to the public health risk, be short in duration, and be reconsidered regularly as the situation evolves.

Travel bans to affected areas or denial of entry to passengers coming from affected areas are usually not effective in preventing the importation of cases but may have a significant economic and social impact.

Yet, it is prudent for travellers who are sick to delay or avoid travel to affected areas, in particular for elderly travellers and people with chronic diseases or underlying health conditions.
